

Camino Natural Resources Streamlines Multi-Entity Assets

CAMINO

Camino Natural Resources is one of the largest private oil & gas producers in the United States. Headquartered in Denver, Camino Natural Resources now holds about 118K acres while producing 40K BoE/day.

The Challenge

In dealing with four acquisitions simultaneously, Camino received approximately 1,000 boxes of documents along with hundreds of thousands of digital records that varied widely from each asset seller, including disk drives, documents received by FTP, and database files. The company faced an enormous undertaking in consolidating these systems, but also needed an easier way to access vital land and lease data to quickly make important business decisions.

The Solution

The company turned to the cloud-based Dynamic Docs, an online document repository that allows you to store, search, and share files company wide. The software and support team assisted the operator by rapidly converting and storing land and well files into a digital format. Dynamic Docs rapidly classified and organized all exploration & production documents into a searchable format, which enabled users to quickly find information whenever they needed it.

The Value

⬡ Time Savings

Merged 4 companies together with the ability to pull out reliable information in just a few months.

⬡ Better Data Integrity

Created a structured data hierarchy consistent with their Oklahoma assets using indexing so no one ever loses a file.

⬡ Reduced Costs

Avoided needing to hire additional lease records managers or pay a fee to get documents out.

⬡ Accessibility

Have remote access to all relevant asset documents whenever needed.

What the Client Says

“ At my former company, we implemented a document management solution that took close to 9 months to get everything into the system which is unacceptable,” said Will. “The Dynamic Docs team was able to get all of our documents from all 4 companies uploaded and searchable into the system in just a few months. ”
